Data Protection Notice (DPN) page in SHL Experience redesign

What is Data Protection Notice (DPN) page in SHL Experience redesign?

The Data Protection Notice page on the SHL candidate experience (via TalentCentral+) underwent a transformation, adopting an accordion format. The revamped interface enhances readability and provides candidates with a more manageable navigation experience from top to bottom. Instead of overwhelming candidates with all the information at once, it is now organized into distinct sections with meaningful headings. Candidates have the flexibility to expand the section of their choice and read information selectively.

Why did we build Data Protection Notice (DPN) page in SHL Experience redesign?

As of now, the DPN page contains a significant amount of information, posing a challenge for candidates to read and absorb in entirety. To enhance the candidate experience and ensure a user-friendly user interface and information presentation, we conceived the idea of implementing an accordion format.

What is the customer impact of Data Protection Notice (DPN) page in SHL Experience redesign?

The redesigned page appears in both the Essential and Advanced candidate experiences via TalentCentral+ for both existing and new customers in all the supported languages. There won't be any impact on the TalentCentral platform, and we will continue to follow the existing UI approach of presenting the data in a single, comprehensive page.

What does DPN page modularization into accordion format look like?
